PREFACE.

This book has been prepared to serve as an introduction to the study of Anglo-Saxon; it makes no claim to originality, but only aims to present in an elementary form the well-understood principles of Anglo-Saxon grammar. It is designed rather to prepare the way for more advanced works on the subject, like those of Dr. March, than to supersede or come into competition with them. From its great age, its wonderful continuity of development, and the opportunity afforded for illustration by kindred dialects, the Anglo-Saxon offers a tempting field to the student of Comparative Philology, and one which will amply repay any toil that may be bestowed upon it; but in order that the student may advantageously cultivate this field, a certain amount of preparation is indispensable; which preparation it is the aim of this book to afford.

The extracts for reading have been selected so as to gradually increase in difficulty. Beginning with ideas which are familiar, the student passes to those which are less readily apprehended, and then to selections which require more labor on his part. Anglo-Saxon poetry is, as a rule, quite difficult, and I have endeavored to lead up to these difficulties gradually, by giving both the prose and the poetic version of Boethius's Metres, thus acquainting the student with the poetic form without the difficult labor of translating wholly unfamiliar passages. In making these selections I have been somewhat restricted by the elementary character of the book, but I have endeavored to admit nothing devoid of interest.

Hoping that this work may be of service in facilitating the study of Anglo-Saxon, and may increase our estimate of the value of the inheritance which we have in our mother-tongue, the author leaves his work with the public, saying with King Alfred, "And nu bit and halsað ælcne þara þe þás bóc rædan lyste, þæt he him ne wíte gif he hit rihtlícor ongite þonne he mihte; for þam þe ælc mon sceal be his andgites mæðe and be his æmettan sprecan þæt he sprecð and dón þæt he déð."

GRAMMATICAL INTRODUCTION.

SOUNDS OF THE LETTERS.

- I. The Anglo-Saxon alphabet has twenty-four letters, as follows: A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, K, L, M, N, O, P, R, S, T, U, W, X, Y, and D, &, D, p, representing the two sounds of th, as heard in thine, thin.
- 2. An accent is found in A.-S. mss., generally placed over the long vowels, but too capriciously to indicate any law; it is used in this work to denote a long vowel.
 - 3 The Vowels were probably sounded thus:
 - a as in what.
 - æ as in fat.
 - i like aw in straw, passing nearly to long o, as in note.
 - & like a in fate.
 - au like ow in now.
 - e as in met.
 - é as in mete (as cwén, queen, Gothic kwino).
 - e before a vowel not forming a diphthong (breaking) like consonantal y (j).
 - eo like German œ.
 - eó like ee in seen (seón to see).
 - ea as in swear.
 - eá like á preceded by ě.
 - i as in dim.

- i as in dime (sometimes as in machine, (so heora, hiora).
- i before a vowel like consonantal y (j) (so iest for east).

iw like ew in new.

- o as in whole.
- 6 like oo in foot.
- u as in full.
- ú as in fool.
- y and ý like French u, coalescing finally with i, i.

Note 1. The simple vowels are a, i, u; a strengthens to æ (á), 6, breaks to ea, and weakens to æ, o, e; i strengthens to í, á (æ), breaks to eo, weakens to e; u strengthens to eó (ú), eá (é), weakens to o. y is i-umlaut of u. Ea and eo seldom coalesce into perfect diphthongs.

4. The Consonants have generally their present sounds, but the following peculiarities are to be noted: c is always sounded like k; cw like qu; o like th in thine, and p like th as in thin, but these characters are used quite interchangeably: g at beginning of words is generally hard, but is sometimes soft as in the pronouns ge, git,—at the end like German soft g, almost passing into y, as dæg, day; h at beginning of words, a strong aspirate,—at end, a guttural, like German ch; h sometimes stands for final g, as burh, gen. burge; hw like wh.

ETYMOLOGY.

5. The Parts of Speech are the Noun, Adjective, Pronoun, Verb, Adverb, Preposition, Conjunction and Interjection.

NOUNS.

Declension.

6. Nouns vary in form, to denote the relations of Gender, Number and Case. There are three genders, Masculine, Feminine and Neuter; three numbers, Singular, Dual (two) and Plural; six cases, Nominative, Genitive, Dative, Accusative, Vocative and Instrumental.

Note. The gender in A.-S. is grammatical, and is not determined by the sex of the object.

- 7. Nouns have two numbers, singular and plural; only pronouns have the dual, used to denote two taken together.
- 8. The Cases are used to denote the following relations:

Nom. subject of a sentence.

Gen. modern possessive, or denoting the relation expressed by the preposition of.

Dat. denoting the relation usually expressed by prepositions to or for.

Acc. modern objective.

Voc. used in Address, same in form as Nominative.

Inst. denotes the agent, or the relation expressed by the prepositions by or with.

NOTE. As the Vocative is the same in form as the Nominative, it will be omitted in the paradigms.

9. There are four Declensions of Anglo-Saxon Nouns, distinguished by the ending of the Genitive singular—

The first ends in es the second in e
The third in a the fourth in an

Note. The fourth declension is called weak; the others strong.

10. In the first declension are found only masculine and neuter nouns; in the second, only feminines; in the third, masculine and feminine; in the fourth, masculine and feminine.

Note. The first, second, and third decl. comprise the vowel stems (a (ia), i, u); the fourth, the consonant stems; in this declension are found four neuters, eage, eare, lunge, clywe.

11. The following is a

NOTE 1. Like stól are declined masc. monosyllables, derivatives in l, m, n, r, ing, els, að, óð, oð, eð, od, ot, et, — h, oc, uc, — u(o). Derivatives in eð and els often drop as in the nom. and acc. pl.; as, hæleð for hæleðas, fætels for fætelsas. Like dæg are declined hwæl, mæg, pæð, stæf, etc. Like bere are declined bryne, cese, owede, ele, ege, ende, esne, hæle; derivatives in cre, words compounded with scipe. Like býre are inflected words used only in the plural, as Dene, Danes; words compounded with ware, as Cantware, Kent-men, though these latter sometimes form the acc. pl. in as. Like fót are declined tóß, man. Like word are declined neuter monosyllables; derivatives in—h, el, ol, en. er, or, ur, od, ed, et, ot, eld. Like fæt are declined hæc, bæß, fæc, fæs, glæs, etc.

Note 2. Byre and fot are from stems in i; nouns like Bere are from strengthened stems in ia; other stems in first decl. end in a.

Note 3. Feoh, cattle, takes gen. feós, dat. feó, acc. feoh, pl. wanting.

Note 4. Some nouns take a or u in nom. and acc. pl., as deofol pl., deofia, deofiu; cíld, cíldra, cíldru.

NOTE 5. Words ending in an unaccented short vowel are frequently syncopated, as engel, gen. engles; tácen, tácnes; tungol, tungles; segen, segnes.

NOTE 6. Metathesis takes place in the plural of some nouns ending in sc, as fise, a fish, pl. fixas (ficsas).

Note 7. Some nouns in e6 take ý in the pl., as fe6nd, pl. fýnd.

Note 8. Some neuters like lim, brim, hlið, take eo in plural — (u-umlaut) as, leomu, etc.

ADJECTIVES.

20. In Anglo-Saxon, as in German, Adjectives have two forms of Declension: the Definite form, used when the noun modified by the adjective is limited by some definitive word, as a demonstrative or possessive pronoun; the Indefinite form used in all other cases.

21. The forms of the Definite Declension are the same as in the Fourth Declension of Nouns. The inflection of the Adjective in the Indefinite Declension, as in the other Teutonic languages, resembles the pronominal rather than the substantive forms.

22. DEFINITE DECLENSION.

Se goda, the good.

D. I.	gód-an	god-an	gód-an	gód-um
A.	gód-an	gód-an	gód-e	gód-an

Se smala, the small.

G.	smal-an	smal-an	smal-an	smal-ena
D. I.	smal-an	smal-an	smal-an	smal-um
A.	smal-an	smal-an	smale	smal-an

Note. Some adjectives of this declension suffer contraction, as fægera, fægra, fair; fámiga, fámga, foamy, etc. Some double the final consonant, as grim, grimma.

23. Indefinite Declension.

1. God, good.

		SINGULAR.		Proi	RAL.
	Mas.	Fem.	Neut.	M. F.	Neut.
N.	gód	gód (u)	gód	gód-e	gód-u
G.	gód-es	gód-re	gód-es	gód-ra	gód-ra
D.	gód-um	gód-re	god-um	gód-um	gód-um
A.	gód-ne	gód-e	gód	gód-e	gód-u
I.	gód-e	gód-re	god-e	gód-um	gód-um

2. Smæl, small.

		SINGULAR.		PLUBAL.
	Mas.	Fem.	Neut.	M. F.	Neut.
N.	sm	smal-u	smæl	smal-e	smal-u
G.	smal-es	smæl-re	smal-es	smæl-ra	smæl-ra
D.	smal-um	smæl-re	smal-um	smal-um	smal-um
A.	smæl-ne	smal-e	smæl	smal-e	smal-u
I.	smal-e	smæl-re	smal-e	smal-um	smal-um

Note 1. The u of the feminine singular and neuter plural quite often weakens to e, and sometimes drops. The termination e has weakened from an original a, which is still occasionally found; as (dat. sing. fem.) micelra for micelre (p. 105, l. 25) (acc. pl.), ealla for ealle (p. 123, l. 4). The Participles, when used as Adjectives, have both declensions.

Nore 2. Adjectives in e, as blive, retain the e in the nominative singular of the three genders, and in the acc. sing. neuter.

Note 3. In late A.S. the inst. often takes the place of the dative; as, mid ænige men (p. 67, l. 20).

24. COMPARISON.

The Comparative degree of Adjectives is regularly formed by adding to the positive indefinite, ra for the masculine and re for the feminine and neuter. The Comparative has only the Definite declension.

The Superlative degree is regularly formed in the definite declension by adding to the positive, esta, este, este, (osta, oste, oste); in the indefinite, by adding to the positive est (ost), as,

Swið, great.

	Mas.	Fem.	Neut.
Compar.	se swíð-ra	seó swíð-re	þæt swíð-re
Sup. Def.	se swíð-esta	seó swíð-este	þæt swíð-este
	swíð-osta	swíð-oste	swíð-oste
Sup. Ind.	swíð-est, swíð	δ-ost

Note. In A.-S. the idea of comparison was carried much further than in the modern use,—the comparative termination being used in the formation of other relative words, as over, second, hwever, which one of the two? where, ever, ofer, over, etc. So also the ordinals are all superlative forms, as fyr-sta, first.

25. IRREGULAR COMPARISON.

Some adjectives become irregular in comparison, through the influence of vowel-change—a changing to e; æ to a; eá into ý or í; ea, eo, u, to y; others are defective, the positive and comparative being formed from different roots.

Forms in ma (me) are relics of an old superlative form, which has been taken as a positive, and again compared.

The following are irregular, through vowel-change:

	.,		_
Positive.	Comparative.	Superlative.
lang	lengra (leng)	lengest	long
strang	strengra	strengest	strong
eald	yldra	yldest	old
neáh	nearra (nýra)	nyst (nýhst)	nigh
neáh	neár	next (néhst)
heáh	hýrra	hýhst	ħigh

Positive.	Comparative.	Superlative.	easy
eáde	ýðra (éð)	Ýðest (eáðost)
feor	fyrre	fyrrest	far
geong	gyngra	gyngest	young
sceort	scyrtra	scyrtest	short
soft (seft)	seftra	seftest	soft

The following are irregular, the different forms being referrible to different roots:

Positive.	Comparative.	Superlative.
gód	betera (bet)	betst	good
yfel	wyrsa	wyrst	evil
micel	mára (má)	mæst	much lytel	læssa	læst	little

The following are from Adverbs:

Adverb.	Pos.	Comparative.	Superlative.
á		ærra (ær)	é rest	ever
		æfterra	æftemest	after
fore		fyrra	forma, fruma, fyrst	fore
feor	feor	fyrre	fyrrest	far
forð		furðor	fordmest	forth

From Superlatives, assumed as Positives:

Positive.	Comparative.	Superlative.
æftuma	æftra	æftemest	after hindema	hindera	hindemest	hind innema	innera	innemest	inner útema	útra	ýtemest	outer midma		midmest	mid
ničema	niðra	niðmest	nether

So also compounds with weard, as - forðweard	furðor	furðum, forðmest

noroweard	norðor	noromest
úteweard	utra (útor)	útema, út emest
niveweard	ničra (ničor)	nivema, nivemest

Note. Combined numbers are sometimes connected by eac or and, meaning added to; sometimes by the next higher ten, and wana, see or butan, denoting less.

27. An ordinal before healf numbers the whole of which the half is to be taken, e.g., pridde healf, two and a half, but when the cardinal is used the number is not diminished, as preo healf, three halves. This same idiom holds good when the number is to be subtracted, as, he heold put rice odrum healfum læs pe prittig wintra, he held the kingdom one year and a half less than thirty years.

Note. Sum, before a cardinal, renders the number indefinite, as, he hadded sume hund scipa, he had about a hundred ships: so also swilce, as, swilce brittig wintre, about thirty years of age: a cardinal limiting sum numbers the whole of which sum denotes a part, as, he code syxa sum, he went one of six—with five others.

NOTE 2. Begen, both, is declined like twegen. Cardinals, from feower to twelf, and from prectyne to nigorityne are used as indeclinables; but they are sometimes inflected, like bere in the "rst declension of nouns.

PRONOUNS.

Personal Pronouns.

29. The Personal Pronouns are ic, pu, and he, heo, hit, he, she, it. Ic and pu retain the dual forms; they are thus declined:

1. Ic, I. 2. pu, thou.

3. He, he; he6, she; hit, it.

SINGULAR. Mas. Fem. Neut. hit N. he heó G. his hire (heore) his D. him (heom) hire (heore) him (heom) hine A. hí, heo, hie hit T. hý (heó) hý (heó)

PLURAL.

Mas. Fem. Neut.

- N. hie (hig, hi, heo)
- G. heora (hyra, hira, hiora)
- D. him (heom)
- A. hie (hig, hi, heo)

Note. The instrumental hý, heó, occurs only in a demonstrative sense, as heodæg, to-day. The pronoun he was originally a demonstrative, and still retains somewhat of this force.

30. The reflexive pronoun is wanting, although the possessive, sín, indicates the former use of the regular reflexive sin, se, sec. Its place is now supplied by the personal pronouns, to which for the sake of emphasis, self is sometimes added. Self, in the nominative, takes both adjective declensions; in the oblique cases it follows the indefinite only. Self is also used as a demonstrative.

Possessives.

31. The genitives min, pin, sin, user (ure) eower, uncer, incer, are used as possessives, and are inflected thus:

1. Min, mine.

	Singular.			Plural.

2. úser, our.

SINGULAR. Mas. Fem. Neut. N. úser (úre) G. úseres (ússes, úres) D. úserum (ússum, úrum) úserre (ússe, úrre) same as mas A. úserne (úrne) úsere (ússe, úre) úser (úre)

I. úsere (ússe, úre) — same as mas.

PLURAL. N. A. úre; G. úrra (ússa); D. úrum.

Note. pin and sin are inflected like min. User suffers assimilation of r to s, and then is contracted; edwer, uncer and income declined regularly according to the indefinite declension Demonstratives.

32. Two demonstrative pronouns are found in Anglo-Saxon, both of which are derived from the same root.

1. Se, seó, pæt, the.

	Mas.	Singular. Fem.	Neut.	PLURAL. M. F. N.

D.	þisum	-	pisse	þisum	pisum
A.	pisne		pas	þis	þás
I.	þys			pys (peós)	Jisum

Note 1. Se, se6, stand for be, be6: se6 is retained in she. The genitive and dative singular of be6s, are contracted forms, contracted thus: bisere bisre; bisse by assimilation; in like manner, the genitive plural is contracted from bisera, bisra, bissa. pæt and bis are found with pl. verbs; as, bæt wæron ealle Finnas (p. 73, 1.2).

NOTE 2. We find in the adverb and preposition goond a relic of an old demonstrative. Compare German jener. You is still used as a demonstrative at the South; e. g., yon house for that house.

Relatives.

33. The demonstrative se, se6, pæt, and the indeclinable pe, are used as relative pronouns. De is also used in conjunction with se, se6, pæt, in all cases, thus:

A.	pone pe	þá þe	pæt þe, þætte	pá pe

NOTE 1. Pe is similarly used with the personal pronouns he, heo, hit, as le his, whose; for se he is found to he, as De he wille (p. 128, l. 8).

Note 2. Swá, retained in who-so, is also used as an indeclinable relative.

Interrogatives.

34. The interrogatives are hwa, who, hwæt, what, hwæðer, which of two, hwylc, what sort of? Hwæðer and hwylc follow the indefinite declension.

Note. Hwæder is frequently contracted, as hwæders for hwæderes.

Indefinites.

35. The Indefinite Pronouns are an, one, some one; anra gehwylc, every one; oder, another; sum, a; hit sume, somewhat; self and sylfa, intensive, like Latin, ipse; man, used as an indefinite subject, like German man, French on; wiht, something; ánig, nánig, manig, any, none, many; hwæt-hwægu, somewhat; hwæs-hugu, some one's. Here also belong compounds with swá, as, swa-hwá-swá, whosoever; swa-hwæt-swá, whatsoever; swa-hwylc-swá, of what-sort-soever; swa-hwæder swá, whichsoever of the two; so also ge-hwá, ge-hwylc, ge-hwæder, some one, any one, either.

NOTE 1. From the demonstrative swá and the adj. lic comes swyle, such; from the inst. bý and lic, býlic, byle, this-like, such; bus with lic forms puslic, such; with gerád, busgerád, of this sort; å-ge forms compounds thus: with lic, æle (ágelíe), each one; with hwyle, æghwyle, whosoever; with hwá, æghwá, whosoever; with hwæver æghwæver, each.

NOTE 2. Sum is used, (1) as an indefinite article; (2) as an indefinite pronoun; (3) with numerals.

NOTE 3. From the demonstratives and interrogatives a corresponding series of adverbs is formed, as per, pes, pá, ponne, ponan, there, since, while, then, thence.

VERBS.

- 36. Anglo-Saxon Verbs form only the Active Voice by inflection: the Passive Voice is formed by the auxiliary verbs beon, wesan and weorðan.
- 37. Four Modes are formed by inflection: the Indicative, which simply predicates; the Subjunctive, which predicates contingently, and in subordinate clauses; the Imperative, which commands; and the Infinitive, the substantive form of the verb. To the verb also belong Participles, present and past, and the gerund, or dative case of the infinitive.
- 38. But two Tenses are formed by inflection: the present, which is also used as a future; and the past, which is also used as a perfect. A future is also formed by sceal and wille with the infinitive; and a perfect and pluperfect, with habbe, had, as at present.
- 39. There are two Numbers, Singular and Plural, the Dual being found only in the pronouns.
 - 40. There are three Persons: first, second and third.

Conjugation of Verbs.

- 41. The Principal Parts of a Verb are the Present Infinitive, the first person singular of the Past tense (and in the Second Conjugation the first person plural also), and the Past Participle.
- 42. Verbs in Anglo-Saxon may be arranged in two Conjugations, according to the method of forming the Past tense.
- 43. The First Conjugation forms the past tense by adding ode (ede), de (te) to the present stem; and the past participle by dropping final e from the past tense. This conjugation originally formed its past tense by the aid of the auxiliary did, as I lov-ed, I love-did.

- 44. The Second Conjugation forms the past tense by a change of the vowel of the present stem; the past participle ends in en. This conjugation originally formed its past tense by reduplication.
- 45. The second and third persons of the present indicative singular often suffer vowel change.

The vowels e, eo a ea eá á ó eó u ú change to i y e e (y) é (y) æ é (y) y

46. If a radical ending in t, d or δ , comes in immediate contact with st or δ (for est, e δ), the following rules apply: After t, st stands but δ drops, as itst, it (for it δ); d before st generally drops; before δ , both change to t, as rit for rid δ ; δ before st and δ drops, as cwist, for cwi δ st and cwi δ for cwi δ δ ; st before st drops, as birst for birstst, before δ rejects δ , as birst for birst δ ; nd before st or δ becomes nt, as stenst, stent, for standest, stand δ .

First Conjugation.

- 47. There are two Cases under the First Conjugation. The First forms the past tense by adding de to the present stem, with the connecting-vowel o, or e, or directly to the stem.
- 48. The Second Case forms its past tense by adding te to the present stem; it includes all verbs whose roots end in c, t, p, x. Verbs whose root ends in c change c to h, in the past tense, as tacan, tachte, teach, taught.

Note. Certain verbs, with a long radical syllable for é, take 6 in the past tense, as, sécan, s6 lite, to seek

Note 2. In the Indicative Present second person singular, o is sometimes found for a, as talost for talast. In the past tense, some verbs take a instead of o, as a connecting vowel.

NOTE 3. The Subjunctive plurals sometimes end in on or an. NOTE 4. A periphrastic future tense is also formed with sceal or wille, with the infinitive; a perfect with hæbbe, and a pluperfect with hæfde and the past participle, as ic hæbbe gelufod, hæfde gelufod, I have loved, had loved.

NOTE 5. The intensive prefix ge is generally used with the past tense and past participle, but may be used with all the tenses.

Second Conjugation.

which form the past tense by changing the vowel of the present. It is subdivided into six cases, classified according to the vowels found in the Past tense, singular and plural, and in the Past Participle. They may be further grouped into two groups: in the first three cases, the vowel in the Present Infinitive and Past Participle is the same, and the same letter is found in all the persons and numbers of the past tense (the third case lengthening the vowel in the plural); in the second group, including the last three cases, the vowel of the participle differs from the vowel of the infinitive, and the vowel in the second person singular and the entire plural of the past tense differs from the vowel in the first and third persons.

56. The following table presents the classification of the Verbs of this Conjugation, according to the vowels of the Principal Parts:

NOTE 1. The first case embraces the so-called reduplicative verbs.

NOTE 2. In the third case liquid roots quite generally take o in the participle.

Note 3. In place of æ, æ, of the third case, ea, éa, are sometimes found, as gifan, geaf, geafon, gifen.

NOTE 4. The Participle in the sixth case sometimes takes short u in place of short o.

NOTE 1. It will be observed that the vowel which is found in the plural of the Indicative Past, is also found in the second person singular of that tense, and throughout the Subjunctive Past.

NOTE 2. Verbs will be found under Case 1, which, owing to contraction, appear to be exceptions, as fón (for fangan), past, féng, pp., fangen; so hón, for hangan.

Note 3. Verbs belonging under Case 2, beginning with sc, sometimes form the past in e6 (what is called the breaking of the vowel), as scyppan (for scapan) takes in the past, either scóp or sceóp. Here also belong contracted verbs, like sleán for sleáhan. Some liquid roots also take o in the p. p., as swerian, p. p. ge sworen.

Note 4. Verbs under Case 3, with liquid roots, usually form the p. p. in o, but sometimes they also retain the vowel of the pres. inf., as helan, to hide, p. p. holen or helen; some other verbs also form the p. p. in o, as brecan, to break, p. p. brocen; æ sometimes shifts to ea, as gifan, geaf; cuman, to come, changes a, á, in the past tense, to o, ó, thus com, cómon, for cam, cámon—a change quite common in A.-S. before m and n. Niman, to take (neoman), takes numen in p. p.

Note 5. Case 4 includes verbs with long i in the present infinitive — for ai, as the past tense shows.

NOTE 6. Case 5 includes verbs with short i in the infinitive present, usually ending in a double liquid or a liquid and a mute.

Note 7. Case 6 closely resembles case 3; it includes verbs having eo, eó, in pres. inf., and others with e or i ending in a double liquid, or a liquid and a mute, which shift æ in the past tense to ea. Some verbs in eos change s to r in the p. pl. and p. p., as ceósan, ceás, curon, coren; so hreósan.

Verbs, with short e, or i, also sometimes take a or æ in the p. p., as hebban, hóf, hafen, heave; steppan, stóp, stapen, step; so also hlihhan, and leahan, given above.

Short i, in the inf., often changes to short e in the p. p., as biddan, bæd, beden, pray; licgan, læg, legen, lie; sittan, sæt, seten, sit; þicgan, þeah (þáh) (pl., þægon, þigdon) þegen, taste. 68 (a) GENERAL NOTES ON THE VERB.

1. The original ending of the Ind. p. pl. was un; this weakened to on $(an, \S 3, n. 2)$. The original form is sometimes found, as hi eorban agun (p. 49, l. 6), they shall own the earth.

2. The original ending of the subj. p. pl. was an (on, § 3, n. 2); as, expan ealle bing gewurðan (p. 50, 1. 4), before all things take place: on is often found for en, as soblice bonne ge fæston (p. 52, 1. 30).

3. The pp. sometimes ends in an; as, hit were begytan, (p. 67, 1. 24), it were procured.

4. The pres. inf. sometimes ends in on for an.

SYNTAX.

69. The Anglo-Saxon syntax corresponds very closely with the Latin.

NOTE. The statement of familiar principles is omitted, (as that a verb must agree with its subject), and attention is mainly given to those uses of the genitive and dative cases of nouns, and of the subjunctive mode of verbs, which are not clearly recognized in modern English.

NOUNS.

Genitive Case.

70. A noun limiting the meaning of another noun is put in the genitive.

Note. This genitive may be subjective; as, Godes gife, God's grace; or objective; as, Godes egsa, the fear of God.

71. A noun added to another noun to express an attribute is put in the genitive.

Note. As: hwites lichaman and fægeres andwlitan men;—lamb ánes geares. This genitive stands also in the predicate: his lichama wæs þæs ylcan gecyndes. Here also belong nouns denoting material.

72. Interrogative and indefinite pronouns denoting a part take a genitive of the whole.

Note. As: hwæt gódes do ic? hwylc manna? gumena æghwylc; ænig þæra engla.

73. Adjectives denoting plenty or want; also those denoting an operation of the mind, take the genitive.

NOTE. Here belong those denoting knowledge, ignorance, remembering, forgetting, desire, love, fear, sorrow, pride, shame, cuilt, innocence, worth, merit, demerit, etc.

74. A noun in the genitive may be added to an adjective to denote that in which the attribute inheres.

Note. As: módes milde; mægenes strang.

75. Cardinals, ordinals, and adjectives used partitively, are followed by the genitive.

Note. Here belong also indeclinables or neuters, denoting quantity or number, as má, fela, feá, lyt:— þæt eálond, is six míla micel; þu þæt fær gewyrc fiftiges wíd, þrittiges heáh, þreo hund lang, elngemeta; fela manna wat; þeáh hyra feá wæron; þær byð wundra má.

- 76. Verbs denoting an operation of the mind; as, to fear, rejoice, be ashamed, boast, wonder, care for reck, rue, wish, yearn for, remember, tempt, enjoy; also those denoting rule or superiority, take the genitive.
- 77. Verbs denoting to need, want, be deprived of, cease, refuse, deny, miss, behove, take the genitive.

Note. Here also belong abidan, to wait for; wthrman, to touch; hleahhan, to laugh; and on-fangan, to receive

- 78. Verbs of sharing and touch, and those affecting a part, are followed by the genitive.
- 79. Beón denoting possession takes a genitive of the possessor.

Note. As: heó and hire bearn sý þæs hláfordes.

80. Adverbs of place and quantity may take the genitive.

Note. As: æghwær eorðan; ic gife him bæs leohtes genoh.

81. Prepositions denoting locative relations, as innan, utan, wið, may take the genitive.

Note. As: innan landes, offe utan landes; þa gewendon hi wið þæs cildes.

Dative and Instrumental.

82. Nouns denoting cause, manner, means, instrument and accompanying circumstance, are put in the dative or instrumental.

NOTE. The dative case absorbed the instrumental, so that the syntax of both cases is given together.

83. Nouns denoting measure of difference, time when and place where, are put in the dative or instrumental.

NOTE. As: bet torbie lond is twelfum herra folde fæbm-rimes; her gefór Ælfred six nihtum ær calra háligra mæssan. This construction sometimes takes the dative with a preposition, as her on bisum geare; time when is sometimes put in the genitive.

84. Adjectives denoting nearness, likeness, comparison, plenty, want, pleasure, pain, trust, distrust, etc., may take the dative or instrumental.

NOTE. Full, wyroe and scyldig, take a genitive, dative or instrumental, denoting guilty of, guilty towards, or guilty by.

85. The comparative degree may take a dative.

NOTE. The genitive is sometimes found; as, see is læssa on Godes rice, se is his mára, Lk. 7, 28; but the construction of ponne with the nominative is more common; as, hú ne synt ge sélran ponne hig?

- 86. Verbs denoting to bid, say, command, wield, answer, praise, hear, obey, worship, serve, follow, give, show, appear, help, pity, honor, fear, respect, please, trust, etc., take the dative.
- 87. Verbs denoting nearness and likeness, take the dative.
- 88. Beón denoting possession, and verbs denoting to belong to, behove, befit, seem; also to need, to happen, take the dative.

- 89. Certain verbs take a reflexive dative; as, to take, go, fear, &c.; as, he him hámweard ferde.
 - 90. Words used absolutely are put in the dative.

Note. As: binra dura belocenre. Sometimes the instrumental is used with the dative, as bisum bus gedone.

Accusative Case.

- 91. Extent of time and space are put in the accusative.

 Note. Sometimes in the dative, as above.
- 92. The accusative is used after verbs and adjectives to denote precisely the limit of their signification.

Note. This is an imitation of the Greek construction; as, græs ungréne.

- 93. Active verbs take an accusative of the direct object.
- 94. Verbs of motion take an accusative, denoting where the motion ends.

NOTE. As: hi noldon sone resan cwellere eft gecyrran, they would not return to the cruel murderer.

95. Intransitive verbs may take an accusative of cognate meaning.

Note. As: he lifde his lif; and cyninges begnas oft ráde onridon: also, sometimes a dative; as, men libban ham life.

- 96. The subject of an infinitive is put in the accusative.
- 97. Impersonals of appetite or passion take an accusative of the person affected.
- 98. Verbs of naming, teaching, etc., take two accusatives, one denoting the person, and the other the thing.

99. Factitive verbs take two accusatives, both denoting the same person or thing.

100. The accusative is used with prepositions implying motion and extent.

Genitive and Dative.

101 Verbs of granting, refusing and thanking, take a dative of the person and genitive of the thing.

NOTE. The dative marks the person interested, and the genitive the aim or motive of the interest; as, ic feores be unnan wille; ic bancige Gode and eow eallum bes frides.

Genitive and Accusative.

102. Verbs of asking, accusing, convicting, acquitting, depriving, reminding, and impersonals of feeling, take the accusative of the person and genitive of the thing.

Note. As: he hine bidde fultimes; tyho me untreowoa, he accuseth me of untruths; hine his rices he benam; hat he nancs hinges ne lyste. Impersonals of feeling sometimes take a dative of the person and a genitive of the cause of the feeling, as, Da of-buhte Gode mancynnes yrmoa; him of-buhte has slapes.

Accusative and Dative.

103. Any verb, together with the accusative of the direct, may take a dative of the indirect object.

NOTE. Here belong all verbs which require a secondary obtect; as, to give, show, say, order, etc.

VERBS.

Subjunctive Mode.

104. In principal sentences the subjunctive is used to make a contingent assertion.

NOTE. This uncertainty may incline on the one hand towards desire, on the other towards doubt.

105. In subordinate sentences the subjunctive mode is used —

- (1). In substantive sentences.
- (2). In conditional sentences.
- (3). In relative sentences of general application.
- (4). In temporal sentences with ponne, ær, oð, wið.
- (5). In concessive sentences.
- (6). In final sentences, expressing purpose.
- (7). In consecutive sentences, to express a result.
- (8). In comparative sentences indicating an imagined comparison.
- (3). In indirect questions.

Note. As: þé is betere þæt án þínra lima forweorðe; gyf hwa slá (strike) þé; syle þam þe þé bidde; þonne þu fæste smyra þín heáfod; þeah þe he geóng sý; begymað þæt ge ne dón eówre rihtwisnesse beforan mannum; gif man sý dumb oððe deáf geboren, þæt he ne mæge his synna geandettan; hér wæs se móna swilce he wære mid blóde begoten (covered); he acsode hwær Crist aoenned wære.

106. In conditional sentences the present subjunctive in the protasis, denotes possibility; the past, impossibility of realization.

NOTE. The indicative proposes as real, the subjunctive as supposed.

PROSODY.

107. Anglo-Saxon verse is alliterative. Each verse is divided into two sections; and a perfect verse has three alliterative words — two in the first section, and one in the second. In reading, the alliterative words are to be marked by a stress of voice.

NOTE. The letter which begins the alliterative words is called the rime-letter; the one in the second section is called the chief letter, the others, sub-letters. For examples, see the poetic selections.

108. Perfect vowel alliteration requires the words to begin with different vowels.

Note. As: yfelne mid eldum, he wæs æghwæm !áð. But sometimes we find the same vowel repeated; as— And hi éne on dæge æton symle.

109. Sometimes double alliteration is found, and occasionally final rhyme, as — para pe lyft and flód lædað and fédað. Ne synn, ne sacu, ne sár wracu. SELECTIONS FOR READING.

FROM KING ALFRED'S OROSIUS.

A.D. 887?]

OHTHERE sæde his hláforde Ælfrede cyninge, þæt he ealra Norðmanna norðmest búde. EXPLANATORY NOTES.

The Reading Selections have been taken from the following editions: The Selections on the Mount, from Bosworth's edition of the Gospels; the Selections can the Uhronicle, from the edition edited by Thorpe for the Rolls series; the Narrative of Ohthere, from Thorpe's Orosius; the selections from Alfric's Hom.lies, from the edition published by the Ælfric Society; the selections from Bede, from Ettmueller's Scopas and Boceras, and Thorpe's Analecta; the prose of Alfred's Metres, from Fox's edition; the poetic extracts are from Grein's A.-S.
